

Canadians will spend an estimated $75 billion on home upgrades in 2020.

In the next year, less than 10% of Canadians will move just to find a better space. Instead, homeowners are rejuvenating and transforming their current spaces to unlock the potential within. Here's your chance to connect and support this primed audience of 21,000+ as they search for inspiration.

Home Show: Home Improvement
February 14 – 17, 2020

Quick Facts

89% of visitors

think of home improvements as an investment.

Though Boomers are still investing in their homes during their retirement, Gen X and Millennials (our biggest categories of attendees) are now outspending them.

The entire new home market was worth only $53 billion in 2016 and we are now spending about $1.33 on renovations for every $1 we spend on new home construction.

Altus Group Ltd.

said renovation spending will reach $72.7 billion in 2017, up from $71.2 billion in 2016, and climb to $74 billion next year.

Gen X and Millennials

want to personalize their homes, and are more likely to spend on customized products (58% and 69% respectively).

What People Say

“The Show was a great venue for our company to pick up leads for the new year. It was a steady pace of customers throughout the weekend and we booked many meetings with potential future clients.”
